This Risk Fact Sheet is provided to you in accordance with MAS Notice SFA N04-N15. It highlights the common risks of trading in CFDs and complements the Margin Trading Customer Agreement ("MTCA") and associated risk disclosures furnished by IG Asia Pte Ltd ("IGA" or the firm). This Risk Fact Sheet does not disclose all the risks of trading in CFDs. It is important to read the MTCA and associated risk disclosures before deciding whether to trade in CFDs. You should also carefully consider whether trading in CFDs is appropriate for you in the light of your experience, objectives, financial resources and other relevant circumstances. If you do not have a copy of the MTCA and associated risk disclosures, please contact IGA to request for a copy. You should not trade in CFDs if you do not understand the product or are not comfortable with the accompanying risks.

Q1. WHAT IS MY POTENTIAL LOSS WHEN I TRADE ON MARGIN IN CFDs?

When you enter into a CFD transaction, you need to deposit an initial margin, which is based on a percentage of the value of the trade. When you trade on margin, you should be prepared to lose more than or all your initial investment amount that you have deposited as margin to the firm.

Illustration 1: CFDs on Forex

Spot GBP/USD is quoted at 1.55797/1.55805 and you are buying 1 standard contract at 1.55805.

To open the buy position, you have to pay/deposit an amount of money (the initial margin) to fund your position. The initial margin is calculated based on the required minimum margin rate of 5%. It reflects a percentage of the full value of the position.

1 standard contract equals 100,000 units of the first named currency.

The initial margin requirement would be $100,000 \times 5\% = \text{£}5000$ or $1.55805 \times 100,000 \times 5\% = \text{USD } 7790.25$

- If the Bid price of GBP/USD falls from 1.55805 to 1.55705, you will incur a running loss of USD100 (i.e. $1.55805 - 1.55705$) $\times 100,000 \times 1$ contract.
- Assuming market conditions become worse and the GBP/USD falls further to 1.55505, you will incur a running loss of USD300 (i.e. $1.55805 - 1.55505$) $\times 100,000 \times 1$ contract.
- You will need to ensure that you have enough funds in your account to maintain your open positions, which in this example, you will need the minimum amount of ($\text{£}5000 + \text{USD}300$) equivalent to maintain your positions.
- In the worst case, the GBP/USD slips further, your account may go into a margin call position which means that we will close your positions at the prevailing price levels to get your account out of the margin call. In the case where the account goes into a debit balance, you will also incur additional charges, costs and fees

Illustration 2: Knock-Out CFDs ("KO")

When you enter into a Knock-Out transaction, you also need to set aside an initial margin.

This is calculated by multiplying the position size with the opening price of your position, multiplied by 1.1, and is approximately the maximum amount that the position can lose.

Margin = Opening price \times position size $\times 1.1$

Opening price is calculated as follows:

Bull: (IG's underlying offer price – your knockout level) + knockout premium

Bear: (Your knockout level – IG's underlying price bid) + knockout premium

Margin is calculated as: [(IG's underlying offer price – your knockout level) + knockout premium] $\times 1.1$

FTSE is quoted with Ask price of 7400. You decide to go long for 1 contract, by opening a FTSE 100 Bull KO position at £1 per point with a knock-out level at 7200. If the current knock-out premium is 0.8, the margin you will need to set aside is $[(7400 - 7200) + 0.8] \times 1.1 = \text{£}220.88$. The KO price will move one-for-one with the underlying IG market, so for every point that our underlying price moves, the KO price moves with exactly the same amount.

- If the FTSE rises and the current bid becomes 7500, your running profit would be +£100.
- If the FTSE drops and the current bid becomes 7300, your running loss would be -£100.
- If the FTSE drops to your knock-out level, your realised loss would be -£200.80, which includes the 0.8 knock-out premium. The additional margin of £20.08 is released back to your account.

Q2. WHAT WILL HAPPEN IF I DO NOT HAVE ENOUGH MARGIN TO COVER MY LOSSES?

Margin call is the term for when the equity on your account (i.e. the total capital you have deposited plus or minus any running profits or running losses) drops below your margin requirement. At this point, your positions become at risk of being automatically closed off in order to reduce the margin requirement on your account. You can also go into a margin call on the weekend for markets that are open.

You can get out of a margin call situation in one of two ways: (1) deposit enough funds to increase your equity above the margin requirement; or (2) close your positions to reduce it.

Please call our helpdesk at +65 6390 5118 if you need assistance.

When will your positions get closed out?

Typically, there are three scenarios in which your positions will get automatically closed out:

- (i) If your equity drops beneath 50% of your margin requirement
- (ii) If you remain on margin call constantly for 48 hours
- (iii) If you are on margin call during periods of increased volatility, or when we anticipate increased volatility

Illustration 3: Margin Call

Referring to Illustration 1, assuming the account has funds of USD 8000. With the initial margin requirement of USD 7790.25 and if the price of Spot GBP/USD should fall to 1.55505, the account will incur a running loss of USD300. This would mean that this account will go into a margin call. Theoretically, to keep the position open, this account would require USD 8090.25 (USD 7790.25 + USD 300), that is to say, it would need to be topped up with at least US$90.25 in this scenario.

Do note our margin requirements are subject to change. If they increase for one or more of your positions, then your current equity may not be enough to keep your positions open. It is also important to remember that we could close you out at any time during a margin call. It is your responsibility to have enough funds on your account to fully cover the margin requirement of your open positions.

Will you be notified?

The firm is not under any obligation to keep you informed when you are on a margin call. However, we may contact you via, for e.g., phone or email.

Q3. HOW IS THE CFD QUOTED?

The firm quotes a lower and higher figure for each transaction ("our bid and offer prices"). These figures will be based on either the bid and offer prices in the underlying market ("commission transaction") or our own bid and offer prices ("spread transaction"). Therefore, CFD prices will only be available if the underlying market/exchange is open or if there is sufficient liquidity.

Q4. CAN MY ORDER BE EXECUTED AT A PRICE THAT IS LESS FAVOURABLE THAN THE PRICE QUOTED ON THE TRADING SYSTEM, OR THE PRICE THAT I HAVE SUBMITTED?

Yes. There are two main reasons for this, namely, high volatility in the market and gap in the market:

High volatility in the market: If there is a sudden movement of price beyond your stop order, the trade may not be closed in time and the stop may not be triggered at the level at which it was set.

Gap in the market: The market moves sharply up or down with little or no trading in between. Particularly for stop-loss orders that are triggered for execution at the stop price level that you have indicated, it may be difficult or not possible to liquidate your position at your stop price level, due to rapid price fluctuations or lack of liquidity in the markets. If any of the foregoing events happens, you may incur unexpected losses.

Q5. WILL MY ORDER BE MANUALLY EXECUTED? IF SO, UNDER WHAT CIRCUMSTANCES DOES THE FIRM RELY ON MANUAL EXECUTION?

Any order that you place on the firm's trading system will be executed electronically and does not rely on manual intervention. You should call our helpdesk if you encounter technical difficulty placing your order.

Q6. WHERE ARE MY MARGINS KEPT AND MAINTAINED? CAN THE FIRM USE MY MARGIN FOR ITS OWN PURPOSES?

The firm treats and deals with all monies received on account of its clients as belonging to the clients. The monies are required by regulations to be segregated from IG's own monies but may be kept in the same omnibus account with other customers of the firm. All client monies must be held in segregated customer trust accounts maintained at approved banks, which must be separate and distinct from the bank's own money. The firm is not permitted to use client monies for its own purposes, including for settling its own dealings with our hedge counterparties.

Q7. WHAT WILL HAPPEN TO MY MARGINS IF THE FIRM BECOMES INSOLVENT? WILL I BE ABLE TO GET BACK MY MONIES OR OTHER ASSETS?

IGA is your contractual counterparty and is obliged under the terms of the MTCA to honour your CFD trades and any profits made. If the firm becomes insolvent, you face the risk that IGA will not be able to honour any profits that you made. All monies held in the segregated customer trust accounts will be protected from the claims of the firm's creditors. Nonetheless, the recovery and return of your monies will take time, as this is subject to due process of the firm's liquidation, which includes the reconciliation of all its clients' positions and monies.

Q8. UNDER WHAT CIRCUMSTANCES CAN IGA CLOSE MY POSITION OR VOID MY ORDER?

Under the terms of the MTCA, IGA can close out your position or void your trade when:

- (i) you are unable to meet the margin calls within the requested timeframe;
- (ii) by reason of any cause beyond the firm's control, including but not limited to any act of force majeure as listed in Term 17 of the MTCA.

Q9. WHAT ARE THE COMMISSIONS, FEES AND OTHER CHARGES THAT I HAVE OR MAY HAVE TO PAY?

The commissions, fees and overnight financing charges that are applicable to your CFD transactions depend on the type of underlying asset /product that you are trading. For examples and details of the commission, fees and overnight financing rates that are applicable, please go to <https://www.ig.com/sg/our-charges>.

Q10. WHAT HAPPENS WHEN TRADING IN THE UNDERLYING SHARE OR ASSET IS SUSPENDED OR HALTED? HOW CAN I EXIT MY POSITION AND WILL I SUFFER LOSSES?

When you trade CFDs with IG, you open each transaction with us as principal and not as agent for any undisclosed person. This means that IG will treat you as our client for all purposes and you will be responsible for performing your obligations under each transaction entered into by you.

In event of a suspension or halt of trading where the price of the underlying share or asset is unavailable, IG will notify clients who have open position on the underlying asset that its margin requirement is going to be amended to 100% and remain at 100% until there are any further news (for e.g. resumption of trading or delisting) which IG will reflect in due course.

If a client has an open position on an underlying share that will be delisted, IG will close the client's position at a level of zero, and typically open a new position (referred to as a "proceeds line") on the client's behalf. This "proceeds line" position is untradeable, has no price, and brings no value to the client's account. When the company of the underlying share eventually announces that no return will be made to shareholders, IG will proceed to close the "proceeds line" position at the level of zero.

During the period of suspension, clients who hold long positions will continue to be charged interest if the positions are held overnight.

In the event of a prolonged period of suspension, the firm may require clients to increase the margins, pay up the contract value in full, or close their positions at an appropriate price determined by the firm. In the worst case, clients could lose 100% of their contract value. Clients may also be liable to pay additional charges, costs and fees incurred.

RISK DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

1. This statement is provided to you in accordance with regulation 47E(1) of the Securities and Futures (Licensing and Conduct of Business) Regulations (Rg 10).
2. This statement does not disclose all the risks and other significant aspects of trading in futures, options, over-the-counter derivatives contracts where the underlying is a currency or currency index ("OTCD currency contracts") and spot foreign exchange contracts for the purposes of leveraged foreign trading exchange ("Spot LFX trading contracts"). In light of the risks, you should undertake such transactions only if you understand the nature of the contracts (and contractual relationships) into which you are entering and the extent of your exposure to the risks. Trading in futures, options, OTCD currency contracts and Spot LFX trading contracts may not be suitable for many members of the public. You should carefully consider whether such trading is appropriate for you in light of your experience, objectives, financial resources and other relevant circumstances. In considering whether to trade, you should be aware of the following:

(A) FUTURES, OTCD CURRENCY CONTRACTS AND SPOT LFX TRADING CONTRACTS

(I) EFFECT OF 'LEVERAGE' OR 'GEARING'

Transactions in futures, OTCD currency contracts and Spot LFX trading contracts carry a high degree of risk. The amount of initial margin is small relative to the value of the futures contract, OTCD currency contract or Spot LFX trading contract transaction so that the transaction is highly 'leveraged' or 'geared'. A relatively small market movement will have a proportionately larger impact on the funds you have deposited or will have to deposit; this may work against you as well as for you. You may sustain a total loss of the initial margin funds and any additional funds deposited with the firm to maintain your position. If the market moves against your position or margin levels are increased, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional funds on short notice in order to maintain your position. If you fail to comply with a request for additional funds within the specified time, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you will be liable for any resulting deficit in your account.

(II) RISK-REDUCING ORDERS OR STRATEGIES

The placing of certain orders (e.g. 'stop-loss' orders, where permitted under local law, or 'stop-limit' orders) which are intended to limit losses to certain amounts may not be effective because market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. At times, it is also difficult or impossible to liquidate a position without incurring substantial losses. Strategies using combinations of positions such as 'spread' and 'straddle' positions may be as risky as taking simple 'long' or 'short' positions.

(B) OPTIONS

(I) VARIABLE DEGREE OF RISK

Transactions in options carry a high degree of risk. Purchasers and sellers of options should familiarise themselves with the type of options (i.e put or call) which they contemplate trading and the associated risks. You should calculate the extent to which the value of the options would have to increase for your position to become profitable, taking into account the premium paid and all transaction costs.

The purchaser of options may offset its position by trading in the market or exercise the options or allow the options to expire. The exercise of an option results either in a cash settlement or in the purchaser acquiring or delivering the underlying interest. If the option is on a futures contract, OTCD currency contract or Spot LFX trading contract, the purchaser will have to acquire a position in the futures contract, OTCD currency contract or Spot LFX trading contract, as the case may be, with associated liabilities for margin (see the section on Futures, OTCD currency contracts and Spot LFX trading contracts above). If the purchased options expire worthless, you will suffer a total loss of your investment which will consist of the option premium paid plus transaction costs. If you are contemplating purchasing deep-out-of-the-money options, you should be aware that, ordinarily, the chance of such options becoming profitable is remote.

Selling ('writing' or 'granting') an option generally entails considerably greater risks than purchasing options. Although the premium received by the seller is fixed, the seller may sustain a loss well in excess of the amount of premium received. The seller will be liable to deposit additional margin to maintain the position if the market moves unfavourably.

The seller will also be exposed to the risk of the purchaser exercising the option and the seller will be obligated to either settle the option in cash or to acquire or contract or spot LFX trading contract, the seller will acquire a position in the futures contract, OTCD currency contract or spot LFX trading contract, as the case may be, contract, with associated liabilities for margin (see the section on Futures, OTCD currency contracts and Spot LFX trading contracts above). If the option is 'covered' by the seller contract, spot LFX trading contract or another option, the risk may be reduced. If the option is not covered, the risk of loss can be unlimited.

Certain exchanges in some jurisdictions permit deferred payment of the option premium, limiting the liability of the purchaser to margin payments not exceeding the amount of the premium. The purchaser is still subject to the risk of losing the premium and transaction costs. When the option is exercised or expires, the purchaser is responsible for any unpaid premium outstanding at that time.

(C) ADDITIONAL RISKS COMMON TO FUTURES, OPTIONS AND LEVERAGED FOREIGN EXCHANGE TRADING

(I) TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF CONTRACTS

You should ask the corporation with which you conduct your transactions for the terms and conditions of the specific futures contract, option, OTCD currency contract or spot LFX trading contract which you are trading and the associated obligations (e.g the circumstances under which you may become obligated to make or take delivery of the underlying interest of a futures contract, OTCD currency contract or spot LFX trading contract transaction and, in respect of options, expiration dates and restrictions on the time for exercise). Under certain circumstances, the specifications of outstanding contracts (including the exercise price of an option) may be modified by the exchange or clearing house to reflect changes in the underlying interest.

(II) SUSPENSION OR RESTRICTION OF TRADING AND PRICING RELATIONSHIPS

Market conditions (eg illiquidity) or the operation of the rules of certain markets (eg the suspension of trading in any contract or contract month because of price limits or 'circuit breakers') may increase the risk of loss by making it difficult or impossible to effect transactions or liquidate/offset positions. If you have sold options, this may increase the risk of loss.

Further, normal pricing relationships between the underlying interest and the futures contract, and the underlying interest and the option may not exist. This can occur when, eg, the futures contract underlying the option is subject to price limits while the option is not. The absence of an underlying reference price may make it difficult to judge 'fair' value.

(III) DEPOSITED CASH AND PROPERTY

You should familiarise yourself with the protection accorded to any money or other property which you deposit for domestic and foreign transactions, particularly in a firm's insolvency or bankruptcy. The extent to which you may recover your money or property may be governed by specific legislation or local rules. In some jurisdictions, property which had been specifically identifiable as your own will be pro-rated in the same manner as cash for purposes of distribution in the event of a shortfall.

(D) COMMISSION AND OTHER CHARGES

Before you begin to trade, you should obtain a clear explanation of all commissions, fees and other charges for which you will be liable. These charges will affect your net profit (if any) or increase your loss.

(E) TRANSACTIONS IN OTHER JURISDICTIONS

Transactions on markets in other jurisdictions, including markets formally linked to a domestic market, may expose you to additional risk. Such markets may be subject to a rule which may offer different or diminished investor protection. Before you trade, you should enquire about any rules relevant to your particular transactions. Your local regulatory authority will be unable to compel the enforcement of the rules of the regulatory authorities or markets in other jurisdictions where your transactions have been effected. You should ask the firm with which you conduct your transactions for details about the types of redress available in both your home jurisdiction and other relevant jurisdictions before you start to trade.

(F) CURRENCY RISKS

The profit or loss in transactions in foreign currency-denominated futures and options contracts (whether they are traded in your own or another jurisdiction) will be affected by fluctuations in currency rates where there is a need to convert from the currency denomination of the contract to another currency.

(G) TRADING FACILITIES

Most open-outcry and electronic trading facilities are supported by computer-based component systems for the order-routing, execution, matching, registration or clearing of trades. As with all facilities and systems, they are vulnerable to temporary disruption or failure. Your ability to recover certain losses may be subject to limits on liability imposed by the one or more parties, namely the system provider, the market, the clearing house or member firms. Such limits may vary. You should ask the firm with which you conduct your transactions for details in this respect.

(H) ELECTRONIC TRADING

Trading on an electronic trading system may differ not only from trading in an open-outcry market but also from trading on other electronic trading systems. If you undertake transactions on an electronic trading system, you will be exposed to risks associated with the system including the failure of hardware and software. The result of any system failure may be that your order is either not executed according to your instructions or not executed at all.

(I) OFF-EXCHANGE TRANSACTIONS

In some jurisdictions, firms are permitted to effect off-exchange transactions. The firm with which you conduct your transactions may be acting as your counterparty to the transaction. It may be difficult or impossible to liquidate an existing position, to assess the value, to determine a fair price or to assess the exposure to risk. For these reasons, these transactions may involve increased risks. Off-exchange transactions may be less regulated or subject to a separate regulatory regime. Before you undertake such transactions, you should familiarise yourself with the applicable rules and attendant risks.

NOTE:

'Margin' means an amount of money, securities, property or other collateral, representing a part of the value of the contract or agreement to be entered into, which is deposited by the buyer or the seller of a futures contract or in a leveraged foreign exchange transaction to ensure performance of the terms of the futures contract or leveraged foreign exchange transaction.

This statement does not disclose all the risks and other significant aspects of trading in Digital 100s. In light of the risks, you should undertake such transactions only if you understand the nature of the contracts (and contractual relationships) into which you are entering and the extent of your exposure to the risks. Trading in Digital 100s may not be suitable for many members of the public. You should carefully consider whether such trading is appropriate for you in light of your experience, objectives, financial resources and other relevant circumstances. In considering whether to trade, you should be aware of the following:

STRUCTURE OF DIGITAL 100s

Digital 100s are options that pay a pre-determined, fixed amount, depending on whether or not an event occurs at the time the Digital 100 expires. Digital 100s can have only one of two possible outcomes and they allow you to take a simple "Yes or No" approach. Like traditional options, Digital 100s are based on an underlying asset such as currencies, commodities, indices or stocks. However, one of the most significant differences from traditional options, amongst others, is that there can be only two outcomes for the option, either the client is paid the return upon the occurrence of the event, or the client loses the investment amount as determined in each option. The Customer has no rights or obligations in respect of the underlying instruments or assets relating to the Digital 100 and settlement of the Digital 100 is on a cash basis.

RISK OF LOSS OF INVESTMENT

You are warned of the following risks:

- (i) Derivative financial instruments and related markets can be highly volatile. The prices of the underlying instruments to which Digital 100s refer may fluctuate rapidly and over wide ranges. Prices may reflect unforeseeable events or changes in conditions, none of which can be controlled by the Customer or IG.
- (ii) Trading in Digital 100s is speculative and involves a high degree of risk. In particular, because it involves two possible outcomes, one of them may include the loss of the entire investment amount.

ADDITIONAL RISKS FOR TRADING IN SHORT TENURE DIGITAL 100s

Digital 100s (including Sprints) are also offered for short-term tenures. The price determination of short-term tenure offerings in Digital 100s may vary substantially from longer term tenures due to differing risk parameters used in their valuations. This may result in valuations not consistent with standard valuation models/metrics.

Due to the structure of the product, the price of a Digital 100 may also fluctuate rapidly, even when the underlying market does not, particularly as the Digital 100 approaches expiry.

This may affect the available pricing offered (or complete inability in the case of Sprints) to exit a position in Digital 100s prior to its expiry for these shorter-term tenures.

SUITABILITY OF DIGITAL 100s

Trading in Digital 100s is speculative and involves a high degree of risk that can result in the loss of your entire investment. Therefore, trading in Digital 100s is appropriate only for persons that understand and are willing to assume the economic, legal and other risks involved in such transactions. Before trading, you should be satisfied that Digital 100s trading is suitable for you in light of your financial circumstances and attitude towards risk. You should not engage in speculative Digital 100s trading unless you understand the basic aspects of such trading and its risks.

Trading in Digital 100s is appropriate only for persons who: (a) understand and are willing to assume the economic, legal and other risks involved in such transactions; and (b) are financially able to withstand losses of their entire investment funds.

If you are in any doubt as to whether Digital 100s trading is appropriate and suitable for you, please seek independent advice from a financial consulting professional. IG does not provide such advice. It is your responsibility, taking into account your personal circumstances and financial resources, to take particular care and make careful considerations independently, prior to trading in Digital 100s with IG.

LEGAL & REGULATORY STATUS OF DIGITAL 100s

Digital 100s are investments which are regulated by the Monetary Authority of Singapore ("MAS"). Where the underlying asset of the Digital 100 does not fall under the regulatory ambit of the Securities and Futures Act (Cap. 289) ("SFA"), they remain unregulated. Currently IG's Digital 100s offered on commodities are not regulated under the SFA. Where they remain unregulated, the Customer should be aware they may not have the full protection offered by the SFA. However IG's business conduct obligations under the prevailing laws remain.

You are trading against IG who act as both the principal issuer of the Digital 100s and the sole counterparty to all your trades in Digital 100s.

You are advised that the Digital 100s offered by IG are not traded under the rules of any recognized, designated or regulated exchange and are known as over-the-counter derivatives. Consequently, engaging in Digital 100s trading may expose you to substantially greater risks than investments which are so traded.

SETTLEMENT BASIS

IG's digital 100s may be settled against either of the following reference price levels:

- (i) The official underlying prices of the instrument as provided independently by the issuer or the exchange which is referenced from Bloomberg

OR

- (ii) IG's prices of the referenced IG instrument indicated for the Digital 100.
